

John Newton (1725-1807), the author of the well-known hymn, "Amazing Grace", was better known for his pastoral counsel than for his preaching or hymn writing abilities. Select Letters of John Newton contains 39 letters to friends and others, even pastors. It is an excellent example of tender, conviction-driven, wise shepherding from a man who was well aware of his own sinful heart and yet eager to impart truth to others.

QUOTES

"Our Saviour, before whom we must shortly appear as our judge, has made love the characteristic of his disciples; and without some evidence that this is the prevailing disposition of our hearts, we could find little comfort in calling him God."

"The Lord bears with you likewise, and expects that you should show tenderness to others, from a sense of the much forgiveness you need yourself."

"If our zeal is embittered by expressions of anger, invective, or scorn, we may think we are doing service to the cause of truth, when in reality we shall only bring it into discredit."

"Ah! what trifles are capable of shutting him out of our thoughts, of whom we say, He is the Beloved of our souls, who loved us, and gave himself for us, and whom we have deliberately chosen as our chief good and portion. What can make us amends for the loss we suffer here? Yet surely if we could, we would set him always before us; his love should be the delightful theme of our hearts."

"There is a difference in kind between the feeblest efforts of faith in a real believer, while he is covered with shame at the thoughts of his miscarriages, and the highest and most specious attainments of those who are wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight. Nor shall this conflict remain long, or the enemy finally prevail over them. They are supported by almighty power, and led on to certain victory."
